Steven Lurie
Founder
Team Builder Ventures

Steven Lurie is the founder of Team Builder Ventures, a venture capital fund to help founders build world-class teams.

Previously, Steven was a member of Zynga's Executive Staff for more than four years, from the early days of the company through its initial public offering. At Zynga, he headed the International group, after building a team in India and leading Zynga's Mobile group.

Earlier in his career, Steven was CEO of Advice Company, one of the web's leading legal advice sites. His startup experience includes Ingenio, where Steven was part of the original management team in 1999. Backed by Benchmark Capital, Ingenio pioneered the pay-per-call advertising model and was acquired by AT&T in 2007. Prior to Ingenio, Steven held a variety of management roles at Microsoft, including in the enterprise software division, from 1993-1999.

Steven organizes the annual Run for Teachers event in honor of his late sister and to benefit schools in India (www.runforteachers.org). He also co-founded the Full Circle Fund, an engaged philanthropy group helping social entrepreneurs (www.fullcirclefund.org).

Steven has a B.A. from Stanford University and a J.D. from Harvard Law School.
