Gregg Farano
Director, Legal Services
Cisco

Gregg Farano is Director of Litigation at Cisco Systems, Inc. In that capacity, Greg helps manage the company's portfolio of commercial litigation matters and business disputes. In addition to hiring outside counsel and managing active litigation and investigations worldwide, Greg counsels Cisco's business units on ways to mitigate legal risk. He also oversees the company's responses to subpoenas and information requests from, federal, state and local government agencies in the US as well as international regulators.

Before joining Cisco, Greg was counsel at a San Francisco-based law firm, where his practice focused on complex business litigation, securities litigation and SEC enforcement matters. Prior to joining that firm, he was a founding member of Ingenio, Inc. (acquired by AT&T Interactive), an Internet company that provided a telephony platform and web interface for live advice services and pay-per-call advertising. He began his legal career with an international law firm in Washington, C, where his practice focused on securities litigation and white collar criminal defense. He lives in Menlo Park with his wife Marcie and their two daughters.
