

GLOBAL TECHNOLOGY SUMMIT

Heidi Roizen

Partner

DFJ

Heidi Roizen is a venture capitalist, corporate director, Stanford educator and recovering entrepreneur. She is an Investment Partner at leading venture firm DFJ. She is also currently a corporate director for DMGT (LSE:DMGT), Zoox, Planet, Memphis Meats, ShareThis and Helix.re.

In the early 80s, Heidi co-founded software company T/Maker and served as its CEO for over a dozen years until its acquisition by Deluxe Corporation. After a year as VP of Worldwide Developer Relations at Apple, she became a venture capitalist and corporate director. Heidi is also the co-lead of Stanford's DFJ Entrepreneurial Leaders Fellowship Program. She has undergraduate and M.B.A. degrees from Stanford, and is the proud mother of two kids and two rescue dogs.

www.dlapipertechsummit.com

© 2018 DLA Piper. DLA Piper is a global law firm operating through various separate and distinct legal entities. Further details of these entities can be found at www.dlapiper.com. All rights reserved. Attorney advertising.